Breast Implant Removal

INSTRUCTIONS

This is a document about informed consent. This will tell you more about your breast implant removal surgery. You will learn about the risks and other treatment options.

It is important that you read the whole document carefully. Please initial each page. Doing so means that you have read the page. Signing the consent agreement means that you agree to the surgery that you have talked about with your plastic surgeon.

GENERAL INFORMATION

Surgery is needed to remove breast implants. This may be a simple implant removal without removal of the capsule tissue around the implant. Or the surgery may have more procedures such as:

- Removal of the capsule tissue around your breast implant (capsulectomy)
- Removal of leaked silicone gel in your breast tissue (extracapsular, or outside the capsule layer) from silicone implants (breast biopsy)
- Breast lift (mastopexy following breast implant and/or capsule removal)

Broken or damaged implants cannot be repaired. Surgery is needed to remove or replace the implants. You may be able to choose either general or local anesthesia for breast implant removal.

There are both risks and possible issues with this surgery.

If you choose to have revisions made to your breast implants, you must sign other consent documents also. This document is for the permanent removal of breast implants and/or capsule tissue around the implants, or a breast biopsy to remove leaked silicone gel.

If you choose to have a breast lift at the same time of breast implant removal, you must sign another informed consent document.

OTHER TREATMENTS

There are other treatment options. These include not having surgery at all, or having other procedures to replace, relocate, or revise existing implants. These options have their own risks and issues. You should discuss these with your doctor.

RISKS OF BREAST IMPLANT REMOVAL SURGERY

All surgeries have some risk. It is important that you know these risks. You must also understand other issues that might come up during or after surgery. Every procedure has its limits. Choosing to have a surgery means comparing the risks and benefits. Most patients do not face problems, but you should talk about them with your plastic surgeon. Make sure you know all possible risks of breast implant removal.

SPECIFIC RISKS OF BREAST IMPLANT REMOVAL SURGERY

Skin Wrinkling:

Wrinkling of the breast skin can occur. These may be visible, felt, or both. More surgery may be needed to tighten loose skin after breast implants are removed. Your breasts will have much lesser volume after implants are removed.

Ruptured Silicone Gel-Filled Breast Implants:

Breast implants can fail. Silicone gel can enter the body when a silicone implant breaks. Implants can break as they are being removed. If an implant breaks, it may not be possible to completely remove all the leaked silicone gel. It may not be impossible to completely remove the shell of textured breast implants. Calcification can occur around implants. The scar tissue around the implant may need to be removed (capsulectomy). It may not be possible to completely remove the scar tissue around a breast implant. More surgery might be needed to remove all of these things.

Delayed Healing and Tissue Death:

Some areas of the breast skin or nipple may not heal normally. They may take a long time to heal. Areas of the skin or nipple tissue may die. Tissue death (necrosis) can occur with many breast surgeries. This includes implant removal. Necrosis may be likely if steroid drugs have been used or after chemotherapy/radiation for breast tissue. Necrosis may also be due to smoking, microwave treatments, and excess heat or cold therapy. Dressing changes may be needed often. More surgery may be needed to remove the non-healed tissue. If you have less blood supply to breast tissue from past surgery or radiation therapy, you may be at increased risk for delayed wound healing and poor outcomes. Smokers are at greater risk of skin loss and wound healing issues.

Change in Nipple and Skin Sensation:

Your nipples and breast skin may be less sensitive after surgery. The sensitivity usually comes back in three to four weeks. Partial or permanent loss of the nipple and skin sensation is rare. However, this is more likely if the surgery area is large. This occurs during scar tissue or silicone gel removal from a broken implant.

Skin and Shape Irregularities:

Surgery may cause skin and shape issues. There may be wrinkling. This could be seen or felt. One breast may be smaller than the other. Nipple position and shape will not be the same on each side. Skin issues at the ends of the incisions or “dog ears” are may occur when there is extra skin. This may improve with time, or more surgery may be needed.

Breast Disease:

Current research does not prove that breast implant surgery increases the risk of breast cancer. If you have a personal or family history of breast cancer, you may have a higher risk of developing breast cancer. You should do a regular self-exam of your breasts. You should also get routine mammograms as advised by the American Cancer Society. Talk to your doctor if you see a lump. If your surgeon notices anything before or during your breast surgery, you may need more tests or treatment. These may cost extra.
